DANIEL WALLACE | Times

Player of the Year | T.J. Roehn, Jr., Berkeley Prep

Why we picked him: Roehn, a forward, had surgery before the season and there were questions as to whether he would miss his junior year, coach Tim Cooper said. Roehn had become a known quantity to opposing defenses and was often double and triple teamed. His impact in the playoffs was immense as he scored seven goals and six assists through the state semifinals before a leg injury, which had a profound impact in a 2-1 loss.

Most impressive accomplishment: Roehn's preseason injury forced him to become a different player. In past seasons he was typically a goal scorer with an explosive move past defenders. This season he became more of a team player. He scored 26 goals and added 21 assists.

Future plans: Roehn, who plans to play soccer in college, is looking at Indiana, Maryland, Duke and USF.

Did you know? Not too long ago Roehn starred in a dodgeball tournament and found himself looking at the opponent and facing elimination. Roehn caught the ball and won the tournament for his team.
